European Grave for Patton; Heart Fails Injured General

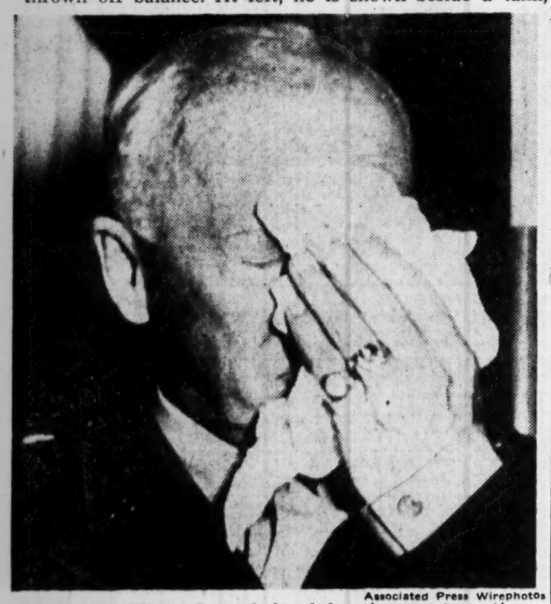

THE PATHS OF GLORY—This is how Gen. Patton, who died yesterday, looked in three steps along the road to fame. Left, as a major of cavalry; center, as a brigadier general training troops; right, at height of his career in smashing Nazi Germany.

THE HERO RETURNS—Gen. Patton salutes welcoming crowds in Cambridge, Mass., where he was given a great ovation when he returned for a leave in the United States.

Happy Outcome Seen For Big 3 Conference

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The Big Three foreign ministers met Friday in the sixth session of their Moscow conference and informed foreign quarters predicted that progress was being made in settling existing differences.

U. S. Secretary James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin were said to be anxious not to raise expectations of their peoples too much in regard to definite results from the conference, but there was a strong feeling that the outcome may be better than originally anticipated.

It is obvious that every difference among the three major powers will not be settled at this meeting, these sources said, but reasons were said to exist for taking a "positive" attitude concerning the conference.

NO WORD ON ATOM BOMB

There was no official word on progress of the ministers' conference, which had been slated to discuss control of atomic energy and other subjects held vital to the maintenance of world peace. Some sort of communique or announcement is anticipated when the conferences closes.

In this connection it was suggested in American circles again that Byrnes still hoped to leave Moscow by Christmas, but observers said it was unlikely that the ministers would conclude their meetings by then. Byrnes plans to return to the United States before attending the general assembly of the United Nations in London scheduled to begin Jan. 10.

Foreign quarters said the foreign ministers of the Big Three have no intention of dominating the United Nations Organization, nor is there any move afoot to dissolve the Council of Foreign Ministers, which includes France and China in additon to Russia, Britain and the United States.

The United Nations Organization will soon begin to take over some of the functions of the ministers' council, however, and it may eventually be dissolved.

FRENCH PROTEST

While there is no daily channel of information being supplied to the French and Chinese representatives in Moscow, Byrnes and Bevin have consulted with them and it was believed they will be kept informed of anything of interest to them.

The French and other embassies protested when Byrnes held a press conference only for Americans, and it was said Friday that before he leaves he will hold a news conference for all correspondents, regardless of country.

Diplomats said that actually there are four media existing for trying to settle world peace problems: The United Nations Organization for long-range matters; the Council of Foreign Ministers whose task is to draft peace treaties; the Big Three ministers; the daily diplomatic channels which are in constant use.

While diplomatic attention was centered on the ministers' meeting, the average Russian citizen was manifesting his interest in Generalissimo Stalin, who celebrated his 66th birthday today.

He was reported at his desk in the Kremlin as usual, feeling fit after his extended vacation, and on the eve of launching another five-year plan designed to give his people economic security and improve their standard of living.

Congratulatory messages poured into the Kremlin from all over the world, but there were no special observances in the Soviet capital.

Mac Says Jap Plan Complete

TOKYO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur has completed the framework of a new Japan; there will be no more major Allied directives.

Allied headquarters, announcing Friday the achievement of this goal, said that the problem of constructing "a sound, acceptable state" now rests largely upon the ability of the fallen nation to assimilate the ordered changes.

A recent directive abolishing state Shintoism completed the series of basic changes in Japan, said the statement, adding:

"Further directives most probably will be limited to those necessary to secure full understanding and compliance with basic premises already set forth."

Observing that Japan's main obstacle is "a lack of sufficient qualified leaders," the statement said political power in the future will be won by the party "which sponsors the greatest implementation to give effect to laws and constitutional changes," creating a government envisaged by the Potsdam declaration and MacArthur directives.

"The changes as directed are expected to be assimilated rapidly, because it has been shown that the average Japanese is very anxious to be out from under the yoke of militarism," headquarters said.

Directives issued thus far, the statement continued, "effect the removal of those restrictive laws and regulations which study has revealed have been a major means where—by control and direction—the Japanese people had been formed into an aggressor nation."

"The war criminal suspects who have been placed in custody constituted the directing genii that formerly guided, shaped and provided leadership to run the government. We now must provide leadership, to cultivate new leadership and direct education . . ."

That education and guidance "must be the main part of the program from here on, because a people who have lived their lives by the sword need help and leadership to adjust themselves to freedom," the statement added.

The Japanese people "must digest the organic changes in their government structure as it has been ordered and make them effective in the framework of their new government."

MacArthur's headquarters said that development of new Japanese leaders was imperative because in the past "liberal leaders and educators have never been allowed to grow or live in the nation."

THEATER CASHIER ROBBED OF $413

Brandishing a pistol, a lone well-dressed white man held up Mrs. Lillian Dupree, cashier at the Paramount theater, and robbed her of about $413, Detectives I. A. Thomas and T. J. Milligan were told.

Mrs. Dupree told detectives she was closing the box office shortly before 10 p. m. yesterday, when the man walked up to the ticket window, pulled a revolver from his overcoat pocket, and said, "This is a holdup — give me your money."

Detectives said they were unable to ascertain how the bandit escaped. Some witnesses said he left in an automobile, and furnished the officers with a license number. Others said he fled on foot. The license number given police was found on a car parked around the corner from the theater, and two youths, who said they were using the car, were taken into custody for questioning.

Loses 12-Day Fight With Broken Neck

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Saturday, Dec. 22.—(AP)—America's great master of tank warfare, Gen. Patton, died peacefully in his sleep Friday of a blood clot which developed gangrene in his lungs and weakened his warrior heart. Mrs. Patton, who was at his side, decided immediately that the general would be buried in Europe at a point along the storied route of the powerful Third Arm he drove to victory.

"The exact place of burial has not been decided, but presumably it will be in France," U. S. Headquarters announced. The funeral probably will be Monday.

The acid-tongued general, one of the greatest in American history, died at 5:50 p. m. (11:50 a. m. EST), 12 days after a hunting trip accident.

"He went down fighting," said Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of U. S. forces in Europe. Flags were ordered to half-staff across the American-occupied zone of Germany.

"The cause of death was pulmonary (lung) embolism followed by cardiac," said the Army medical specialist who attended him.

Survivors also include a son, George S. Patton Jr., who is a cadet at West Point, and two daughters.

Patton died almost a year to the day after one of the greatest military feats in history—the 78-mile plunge by his Third Army to the relief of the battered men of Bastogne, in last winter's "Battle of the Bulge."

Patton's neck was broken Sunday, Dec. 9, and he suffered paralysis from the shoulders down. He was injured in a collision between a truck and the motor car in which he was going pheasant hunting.

"This is a hell of a way to die," Patton said then as he was lifted into an ambulance.

But his condition steadily improved, and last Wednesday he sat up in bed. Then, 48 hours ago, bronchial secretions brought on congestion of the lungs and Friday his heart became affected.

Col. R. Glen Spurling, War Department medical specialist, said the blood clot which caused death occurred when Patton was well on his way to recovery from partial paralysis. The clot developed early Friday.

Doctors had hoped to fly Patton home within the next week or 10 days, and the general was enthusiastic, Spurling said, adding:

"He had all the courage in the world and was confident he would pull through."

Spurling revealed that Patton had suffered two embolisms several years ago when he broke his leg, but had survived them.

Patton had been sleeping since 4 p. m. until the moment he died.

"When I talked to him just before he went to sleep he was bright and alert," Spurling said. "He said he felt better and very comfortable."

McNarney told reporters:

"It is my painful duty to announce the death of a great fighter and a great man.

"Gen. Patton died this evening

United States Army officials have decided to retain the Bell Bomber Plant at Marietta—and the airport.

Neither will be sold.

Both are for lease.

This affords the city of Atlanta and the county of Fulton an opportunity that will not come again.

The airport may be leased for a nominal sum.

Later on the opportunity would come to purchase it—at a nominal sum—giving the Army rights to it in wartime—if war should come again.

It would not be leased—and later purchased—with any idea of making it Atlanta and Fulton county's official airport. The Atlanta Municipal airport will remain that.

But the plain facts are that cities smaller than Atlanta already have more airport facilities than we.

Atlanta—and Fulton county—became great because Atlanta was a railroad crossroads. It is the natural airways hub of the southeast. It cannot become so unless there are ample airport facilities. The Bell port—as is—could serve as an auxiliary field. Later, when air traffic becomes greater, it can be improved.

We think Atlanta and Fulton county should join with DeKalb county to obtain the Naval airport in that county when it becomes available. All three counties—Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb—must work together to grow.

Now is the chance.

The Constitution appeals to Mayor Hartsfield, to the county commissioners and all interested in the future to see to it this opportunity is not lost.

Fire Razes Sunday School Building Of St. Mark Methodist Church

Two fires within a few minutes of each other severely damaged a Sunday school building and caused the loss of a quantity of clothing in a Piedmont avenue laundry.

The most spectacular of the two blazes was discovered shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday in a Sunday school building in the rear of St. Mark Methodist church, 781 Peachtree street, while the laundry destroyed was in a drier at the Excelsior Laundry, 141 Piedmont avenue, N. E.

Firemen called to the Peachtree street blaze were handicapped in reaching the scene by spectators who thronged into the churchyard, making it necessary for policemen to make a path through the throng so that firemen could drag hose and other equipment to the blaze.

The blaze, believed by police to have originated in Christmas decorations which had just been hung in the two-story frame building occupied by the H. Warner Hill and the Mrs. Alonzo Richardson Bible classes, so severely damaged the building that police and firemen said it would have to be torn down.

Oby Brewer, past president of the Hill Bible class, and active in affairs of the St. Mark church, estimated the damage there at approximately $25,000. Brewer said plans have been under way for some time to replace the building with a larger and more modern structure.

The fire, said by police to have been one of the most spectacular blazes seen in Atlanta in months, sent flames shooting high into the air, and could be seen for many blocks.

Firemen who first reached the scene said the burning structure threatened to spread to other Sunday school buildings nearby, and also threatened the main church structure, some 75 feet away. In all, four alarms were turned in, sending more than half of the city's fire fighting equipment to the church.

The Sunday school buildings all belong to the St. Mark church.

Police Capt. R. H. McLean, one of the first to reach the scene, said he had learned two heaters were burning in the building. He expressed the opinion that heat from one of the burning heaters had set the Christmas decorations on fire.

At the laundry, a fire originated in a drier, destroying the clothing being dried, and also damaging six electric motors.

T. A. Martin, manager of the laundry, told police officials he could not estimate the damage. Police said a quantity of laundry was destroyed.

British Smash At Black Mart

LONDON, Dec. 22—(INS)—British police Friday night cordoned off 1,500 square miles of Moorland in Lancashire and Yorkshire for five hours in the biggest blackmarket dragnet ever drawn in Britain.

Every motorist in the area was halted and ordered to produce his identity cards and driving license.

Every car was searched for food and liquor by Ministry of Food officials.

Rain Forecast for Today Or Tonight; High of 47

Last-minute Christmas shoppers will be wise to take along waterproof clothing today, the weatherman warns. Rain is expected to arrive in Atlanta by this afternoon or maybe as late as tonight, accompanied by temperatures ranging from a low of 26 degrees to a high of 50 degrees.

Yesterday the mercury rose steadily from an early morning minimum of 22 to a maximum of 48 degrees.

Tech Delays Building To Avert Evictions

Georgia Tech's plans of construction which would evict 70 persons Jan. 1 have been delayed in view of the housing emergency, Pres. Blake Van Leer has informed State Housing Expediter Lon Sullivan.

Van Leer said Tech is preparing to build classrooms and housing facilities for students on the property now occupied by these homes.

Complaints from residents who had been served notice to vacate by Jan. 1 led the state housing expediter to appeal to Van Leer to delay plans for the evictions.

"President Van Leer has assured me that Georgia Tech will co-operate to the fullest extent in this emergency," Sullivan said yesterday. "However, the families living in these units should contact the Community Housing Center of the Chamber of Commerce immediately in an effort to find new living quarters."

Sullivan said that within 30 or 60 days, when materials have been made available for Tech's building program, it would be inadvisable to ask the school to delay further the building of living quarters for students who now occupy other rooms in the city.

Meanwhile, reports were received from eight more communities in which there are housing shortages. Sullivan has received reports from a total of 63 communities, showing a need for 10,103 dwelling units.

A meeting has been held daily with a committee of three from the Home Builders' Association and three from the Building Materials Manufacturers' Association to determine what types of materials are needed and the most expedient way to bring them into the home building market in Georgia.

Christmas Is 'the Children's Day', Or Else Mother's Day of Despair

By KATHERINE BARNWELL.

"Christmas is the children's day," you often hear. It's the day when the youngsters should have a free rein to enjoy all the wonders a bulky Santa can bring down a slim chimney. It's the day that their dreams of drums and horns, wagons and sleds, and skates and dollars should all come true.

Unfortunately, they won't. There will be many disappointed boys who will get only a color book when they asked for a wagon. And girls who will get only a checker game when they wanted a doll carriage.

Such disappointments amount to tragedies in their small worlds, but they are minor ones compared to those experienced by their parents. A loving mother unable to provide the best for her children, not only at Christmas but throughout the year, is the epitome of despair.

Such a mother is Mrs. K., who admits an inordinate love for her four children, Lucy, 8; Carrie, 7; Bing, 3, and Charles, 2. She has done her best to obtain for them some of the things which make a youngster's happy Christmas. But she has had to explain to Lucy and Carrie that "Santa has lots of little children to visit" and therefore must spread his gifts thin.

Mrs. K. is a sensible as well as a devoted mother and she knows it would be foolish to buy expensive toys, when there is no coal in the bin, little food in the cupboard and none but threadbare clothes in the closet.

She was deserted eight months ago by her husband. Her total income now is $54 a month—that for a family of five! But that is the maximum allowed for a mother with four children from the Aid to Dependent Children fund under the state law.

The Family Welfare Society estimates that this family needs $39 a month more in order to have life's bare necessities. If she can find someone to care for her children during the day, Mrs. K. plans to get half-time work, and thus this subsidy may be only temporary.

By contributing to The Constitution's Opportunity Fund, you can help deserving people like the K. family bridge their economic gap. You can help them, not only at Christmas time, but throughout next year.

Yaarab Temple again this year has made a contribution in the amount of $300 to the Opportunity Fund. This is part of the net proceeds from its annual Shrine circus, which it distributes among several Atlanta and Georgia charities.

The Salvation Army has presented a check for $240 to The Constitution's fund for needy families.

A prominent Atlanta man and his wife, who wish to remain anonymous, have sent a check for $250 to the Opportunity Fund. He wishes that his money shall be used for blankets, and writes:

"When you go to bed these cold nights, you have a comfortable bed and plenty of warm cover! So do I, but there are hundreds of women and children who, after piling on everything they have, are still not warm enough to be comfortable. . . . Blankets would prevent untold suffering."

These are only a few of the generous donors to the fund. All gifts are equally appreciated. If you have not yet made a contribution to the Opportunity Fund, do so at once. YOUR help is needed if all the human suffering in Fulton and DeKalb counties is to be alleviated.

Address your donation to H. H. Trotti, treasurer, Opportunity Fund, care The Constitution, Atlanta.

FOOTBALL 'SPECIALS' TO COAST PROHIBITED BY ODT CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(INS)—ODT Chief James Monroe Johnson ordered railroads Friday not to run special trains to the Pacific coast for football games on New Year's Day.

If such trains are run, he warned, they will be commandeered to carry veterans on the return trip.

Reports that special trains would be provided football fans caused Johnson to send special telegrams to the Association of American Railroads, the Pullman Company and the Western Passenger Association.

Board Gives GM and Workers 'Til Dec. 28 To Settle Strike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(UP)—President Truman's fact-finding board Friday set a Dec. 28 deadline for settlement of the General Motors strike by collective bargaining. If it is not settled by then, the panel will resume jurisdiction.

Panel Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison told representatives of GMC and the CIO United Auto Workers to make a "fresh and determined effort to settle their differences by agreement and without further action by the government."

Further collective bargaining sessions were arranged both in the GM dispute and in the oil industry wage dispute. The government menawhile granted Presidentially-appointed fact-finding boards extensive authority to consider employers' ability to pay higher wages. It did not, however, grant power to subpoena company books.

Garrison told the GM disputants that the panel "is firmly of the view that the strike can and should be settled by agreement of the parties, and that collective bargaining in this case has not yet proved adequate to its proper task."

He said the board will adhere to the following policy:

1. Ability to pay will be regarded as one of the factors relevant to wage increases. It will not, however, necessarily be the controlling factor.

2. Whether the board will ask the company to open its books will be determined as the case develops.

3. The board will be governed by wage-price policies proclaimed by the President.

4. It will require exact and detailed information on the issues of reduced take home pay, cost of living increase and other factors.

The disputants agreed earlier to meet next Wednesday in Detroit to discuss local plant demands of the union. At a brief negotiating session, the union agreed to submit its revised list of demands at that meeting.

GMC Vice-President Harry W. Anderson said arrangements would then be set up to discuss the demands on a plant by plant basis at those GMC properties where management officials are allowed to cross union picket lines. He said it would not be done for those 14 plants where picket lines prevent management representatives from entering the properties.

UAW Vice President Walter Reuther said that the union was glad that the company is ready to meet and expedite agreement on the local matters. The issues are supplemental to the main demand of the union for a 30 percent wage rate increase.

Rentz Naval Air Station Executive

Lt. Cmdr. T. H. (Slap) Rentz, widely known in Georgia educational and athletic circles, has been named executive officer of the Atlanta Naval Air Station, according to an announcement by Capt. E. T. Neale, USN, commanding officer.

A Naval aviator in World War I, Lt. Cmdr. Rentz is a resident of Milledgeville, a Mercer University alumnus, and for 14 years was athletic director at Georgia Military College. During the between-wars period he also served as professor of history in the University of Georgia system. He is the owner of Mt. Nebo, historic antebellum home near Milledgeville. His wife is the former Miss Jean Oliphant, of Macon.

Rentz was called to active duty in the Naval Reserve in 1942, serving on the Naval aviation selection board in Atlanta and later as officer-in-charge of the Naval auxiliary air field at Gainesville, Ga. Following a tour of duty in Washington, D. C., he was assigned to the operations department of the Atlanta Naval Air Station. As executive officer he succeeds Cmdr. Thomas M. Chapman, returned to inactive duty.

Traveler Loses Legs Under Train Wheels Here

A man believed to be Charles A. Hall, about 53 years of age, was severely injured last night when the wheels of a coach being switched at the Union station ran over him, severing both legs.

The man was taken to St. Joseph's infirmary, and attending surgeons reported his condition as critical.

Police reported the man had just purchased a ticket to Peoria, Ill. A search of his clothing, police said, revealed a driving license issued in the name of Charles T. Vititow, of Peoria.

Drys Move To Put Wine, Beer Under Local Option Law

An effort will be made at the January legislative session to expand the local option plan to include wine and beer as well as whisky.

The attorney general's office has been requested to draw a bill providing for local option elections on wine and beer, it was learned yesterday, after a group of Atlanta ministers and Senate President Frank Gross conferred with Gov. Arnall and Attorney General Eugene Cook.

Last spring, the house passed a bill that would have banned wine and beer and all whisky in dry counties. The bill was held in senate committee, however, when the senators saw that it would repeal the act permitting a person to possess two quarts of liquor in a dry county.

The proposed new bill would not change the liquor laws, but would permit each locality to vote on whether or not it wants beer and wine sold in that community. Beer and wine have been legalized in Georgia, while liquor, operating under the local option plan, is legal in only 26 of the 159 counties.

Arnall Would Honor FDR at PineMountain

Gov. Arnall hopes Pine Mountain State Park can be designated as a memorial to the late President Roosevelt, and that a tower with chimes will be built at this park.

He expressed this hope in a letter yesterday to Henry Kimbrough, of Chipley, former legislator, concerning development of the Pine Mountain State Park. Arnall sent carbons of his letter to the representatives of Harris and Meriwether counties, with a view to them sponsoring the necessary legislation in January.

WORKERS 3 TO 1 FOR STEEL STRIKE

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21.—(AP)—First returns from Friday's cleanup voting by 45,000 CIO United Steelworkers on projected strike action in their wage dispute showed three-to-one in favor of a walkout, already called for Jan. 14.

The National Labor Relations Board office here announced that small groups of employes of four Pittsburgh steel and cooperage firms voted 149 in favor of a strike and 48 against.

Returns from six small plants in the Chicago area gave 229 for a strike and 67 opposed.

Friday's votes, for employes of 145 firms in 17 states, were scheduled in response to petitions the union filed with the NLRB after the petitions for the big vote last month. The union seeks a $2-a-day wage increase.

U.S. Troopship Taken in Tow Off California

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—(UP)—Two crippled ships, including a transport with 700 returning servicemen aboard, fought high seas off the Golden Gate Friday night as storm warnings flew along the California and southern Oregon coasts.

The weather bureau warned of strong southeasterly winds which may reach gale force during the night.

The landing craft LST 224, which was in danger of foundering for several hours Thursday night when her ramp door jammed during the rescue of two crewmen who had been washed overboard, was reported "secure" and expected to reach San Francisco Bay within a few hours.

The 7,000-ton Army motorship Imperial, carrying 700 troops from San Francisco to Ft. Lewis, Wash., for discharge, was taken in tow during a 50-mile gale off Cape Mendocino by the Coast Guard cutter Shawnee. She also was returning to San Francisco.

The Imperial flashed a call for assistance Thursday night after reporting engine trouble.

Found Slain; Wife Is Held

Following discovery of the body of E. J. Reynolds, 50, of 1699 Evans drive, S. W., on the floor of the kitchen of his home, with his face badly beaten, his wife, Mrs. Louise Reynolds, was taken into custody by Police Lt. E. S. Faucett and is being held at police headquarters on a blanket charge of suspicion.

The body of Reynolds, who had apparently been dead several hours, was found last night by L. O. Regan, also a resident at the Evans drive address, who reported previously seeing two soldiers running away from the home.

Police said when they arrived Mrs. Reynolds was in bed asleep.

Johnson Tosses Hat in Ring for Ramspeck's Seat

Johnson, who resides at 1310 Allen avenue, S. W., was admitted to the bar in Atlanta in 1927. He practiced in Fulton and Cobb counties for several years.

In 1939, he was a candidate for congress against Rep. M. C. Tarver. Johnson is a veteran of the first World War and has a son, Mitchell Johnson Jr., who is a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps. He is a member of the American Legion, a Mason, and an Elk.

State Wins Right To Negotiate for Battey Hospital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Negotiation of a five-year lease with Georgia for Battey General hospital at Rome, Ga., was authorized by the Surplus Property Administration Friday.

The Federal Works Agency will negotiate the lease. It will include an option to purchase later.

The hospital recently was declared surplus by the War Department.

Georgia has declared it needs the hospital for a tuberculosis sanitarium, the administration said. The state, the agency added, plans to convert its present tuberculosis sanitarium into a mental institution or prison for women.

Federal Works Agency was authorized to issue a temporary occupancy permit immediately.

Patton One of Richest Generals in Army

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(UP)—Gen. Patton was one of the wealthiest generals in the United States Army. There have been reports that Patton was the richest.

He inherited a fortune from his father, who was a real estate executive. His wife is even wealthier, the principal stockholder in a cosmetic firm. Patton frequently turnesd over his earnings as an Army officer to Army relief.

Patton was a colonel at the end of World War I, but that temporary rank was lowered to captain between wars. Subsequently, he was promoted to major, lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general — which rank he held when World War II started. He was then appointed major general, raised to lieutenant general and, finally, President Truman named him a four-star general.

OPA RULES LIQUOR PRICE RAISES CAN'T EXCEED STATE TAX INCREASE

Atlanta retail liquor dealers cannot charge more than the actual increase of state warehouse charges, the OPA has ruled.

Announcement of this was made yesterday by OPA officials, who pointed out that state warehouse charges have been increased from 50 cents to $3 per gallon. The old 50 cent charge, OPA pointed out, was added in the cost, and the retailers were permitted to mark up their retail price on that figure. Under the new ruling, the additional $2.50 charge cannot be included in the cost price. Under this ruling, retailers can add only 50 cents to their former retail price of bottles containing a fifth of a gallon of liquor. The added price on bottles of other sizes must be in proportion, OPA said.

Since the state increased the warehouse charges, local retailers have increased their prices as much as 86 cents per fifth.

PATTON

at the 130th hospital in Heidelberg.

"His injuries were grave, but his fight to overcome them was gallant. He went down fighting. Patton would have died in no other way.

"And now, for us over here and all who applauded his bravery, there is a sudden empty feeling.

"He brought to us a large part of our magnificent victory and this, too well known to need description, belongs to history."

Earlier in the day the 130th station hospital issued a bulletin saying Patton's condition was considered serious, and Maj. Gen. Albert W. Kenner, chief Army surgeon in Europe, was rushed to his bedside.

The lung condition which weakened him was described as having been complicated by a partial paralysis of the diaphragm, directly due to injury to the general's spinal cord.

CAR-TRUCK COLLISION

A week ago last Sunday, shortly before noon, the general's sedan collided with an Army truck on the superhighway on the outskirts of Mannheim. Patton was found splattered with blood from cuts about his face, reclining in the back seat of the wrecked vehicle.

An ambulance rushed him the 20 miles to Heidelberg in 25 minutes.

Brig. Hugh Carnes, neurosurgical consultant to the British Army, sped to Heidelberg from England, while Mrs. Patton and Col. Spurling, of Louisville, Ky., boarded a plane at Washington.

After several days of observation the general was placed in a traction apparatus to realign the vertebrae, and his condition improved steadily. Early this week he was removed from the traction and a cast was applied, covering his neck and upper chest. He sat up to eat and read, and doctors called the speed of apparent recovery "amazing."

Then he took a turn for the worse from bronchial secretions, which led to congestion of the lungs.

WIFE AT BEDSIDE

As Patton neared death, Mrs. Patton was down the hospital corridor in the special room which was provided for her. A lieutenant ran from Patton's bedroom to disclose that her husband was dying.

Mrs. Patton rushed to her husband's bed and was by his side when he drew his last breath. She later told Spurling she was "thoroughly satisfied" that everything possible had been done to save his life.

She decided her husband would be buried "over here," meaning in northwest Europe, an Army spokesman said. The grave probably will be in one of the battlefields on which the Third Army fought, in France.

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, who succeeded Patton as commander of the Third Army, ordered flags flown at half staff and instructed all military installations to hold memorial services.

"We personally lost a great friend and the country a great citizen and soldier, his family a true and devoted husband and father," Truscott said.

NO DIPLOMAT

Patton's job was war, and he had worked at it with amazing success for more than 30 years. But he was a stranger to the world of diplomacy, and his remarks and actions off the field of battle kept him in hot water.

The first great criticism rose when Patton slapped a hospitalized soldier who was suffering from battle fatigue during the Sicilian campaign. Gen. Eisenhower made Patton apologize publicly, but kept him for his assignment later to the Third Army.

Three months ago Patton was removed from command of his beloved Third Army as a result of criticism of his actions in carrying out the de-Nazification program in Bavaria. He was placed in command of the 15th Army, which had become largely a "paper Army" compiling a history of American campaigns in the war.

Just a year ago on Dec. 22, German broadcasts announced that Patton's Third Army had begun "fierce" attacks on the Nazi southern flanks in the great Battle of the Bulge, and that the German advance, which Hitler promised would reach Paris by Christmas, had been slowed.

RUSHES THIRD INTO BREACH

The enemy breakthrough had smashed 40 miles across Belgium, had broken through Luxembourg, had cut Allied supply lines and was driving on Sedan, when Gen. Omar N. Bradley called Patton and asked how long it would take to shift the Third Army from the Saar to the Bulge.

"Sir," said Patton, "it won't take me as long as you would think."

Patton flew back to his headquarters at Nancy and called in his staff.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have called upon you before to do the difficult. This time I'm asking the impossible."

Men were pulled from their foxholes, loaded onto trucks and headed north over icy, treacherous roads, in an 80-mile-long column, bumper to bumper, hurried and harried by a Patton who cajoled and swore as he bounced along in a jeep equipped with a blaring airhorn, loud as a steamboat whistle.

Once into the Bulge battle zone, Patton's men and their tanks kept going right into battle without pausing for rest. They pushed on into the muzzles of German guns until they gripped with the Nazis.

Grim, hard, bitter cold, bloody days followed. But on New Year's Eve Patton strode into a briefing meeting, and told correspondents:

"When you're in a brawl with a guy and you get him in a vital place, you squeeze. Today we began squeezing."

The thrusting, pinching blows of the First and Third Armies knocked the Germans back for 12 miles at the western end of the salient into Belgium.

The Third Army had pounded to the Reich border at three points in northeastern Luxembourg, had broken the enemy's Sure river line, and dug in on new positions four miles north of Bastogne. And at the same time came the clear skies for which Patton had prayed at Christmas, and the Air Forces attacked in support.

HARASSED ENEMY

Patton hammered along a 50-mile front of the German salient, sheared Nazi supply roads, threatened to cut off enemy armor which had pushed to within 23 miles of Sedan.

In 14 days the Third Army changed the Von Rundstedt offensive into a German defensive battle and claimed a large number of the 60,000 German casualties.

After three more weeks of toughest fighting, the Third was overrunning northern Luxembourg and smashing at the tail of Germans racing for cover behind the Siegfried Line. By Jan. 27 the Third Army had rolled up to the Our river frontier, wiping out the last vestiages of the bloody Ardennes Bulge.

Education Board Given FSA Camp

The Farm Security Administration has given to the state department of education, a Negro camp, including 226 acres of land and buildings, in Macon county, State School Superintendent M. D. Collins has announced.

$167,000 Fund Given Emory Polio Program

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis yesterday granted Emory University $167,000 to finance a five-year program in physical medicine for Atlanta and the Southeast.

The program, announced jointly by Basil O'Connor, president of the foundation, and Dr. Goodrich C. White, president of Emory, will embrace:

(1) Extensive research in the field of physical medicine as applied to neuro-muscular diseases, particularly poliomyelitis.

(2) A program of training for doctors in physical medicine and for technicians in physiotherapy.

(3) Establishment of facilities for the treatment of victims of infantile paralysis and other diseases by physiotherapy.

Dr. White said that the Emory Medical School will establish a department of physical medicine at the Emory University hospital to carry out the program. The department will be headed by Dr. Robert L. Bennett, director of physical medicine at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, and Emory officials expect it to become a permanent part of the hospital.

In addition to Dr. Bennett, who will continue his work at Warm Springs, devoting half his time to Emory and half to the foundation, the National Foundation's plans for Emory call for the appointment of an assistant director in charge of research in physical medicine, as well as a staff of specialists and secretaries.

Dr. Eugene A. Stead Jr., dean of the Emory Medical School, says that the purpose of the program will be "to develop and carry on a teaching, research and service program in physical medicine." He said that such a program not only will encourage and guide the proper practice of physical medicine in the over-all medical care program, but will specifically contribute to the care of the after effects of poliomyelitis.

He said that work at Emory will be correlated with that at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation.

Funeral Rites Set For Carlan Baby

CHELSEA, Mass., Dec. 21.—(UP)—Baby Ronald Carlan died of "asphyxiation and pneumonia," Medical Examiner William J. Brickley said Friday in a final medical report on the death of the 6-month-old child.

The report came after Dr. Brickley received the findings of Dr. Joseph T. Walker, state police chemist, who made a chemical analysis of the baby's vital organs. Dr. Walker's report was negative, ruling out the possibility that drugs or any other elements contributed to the child's death.

Following his report, Dr. Brickley released the body. Private services will be held at a funeral home here Saturday for the child whose mother, Mrs. Rose Carlan, faces a murder charge in his death.

Naval Training Work Extended at Tech

In a statement made yesterday by Dr. Blake R. VanLeer, president of Georgia Tech, it was made known that the school would continue the program with the same enrollment as now, which is approximately 700 naval trainees.

ICC Enjoined Against Rate Change Move

Georgia and the South suffered a setback yesterday when a three-judge tribunal in the United States district court in New York city temporarily enjoined the Interstate Commerce Commission from reducing freight rates 10 per cent in the South and increasing them 10 per cent in the North.

This information was received by Gov. Arnall. He declared that the decision showed that the South's only hope for redress is in the United States supreme court.

Arnall pointed out that the 20 per cent improvement in rate comparisons planned by the ICC still would have left the South at a 19 per cent disadvantage, since the North today has a 39 per cent better rate than the South.

Chiang Greets Gen. Marshall At Nanking

NANKING, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Gen. Marshall arrived here Friday by plane from Shanghai and was warmly greeted at the airport by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who cast protocol aside to welcome in person the special American envoy.

The two men and Madame Chiang left at once for the generalissimo's official residence, to begin talks which may vitally influence strife-torn China's hopes of internal peace and unity.

They clasped hands on Nanking's dusty, windswept airfield at a moment when all China and a large part of the Orient watched tensely for signs that Marshall's mission might bring an end to the country's undeclared civil war.

Chiang's presence at the airport in itself was regarded as a significant gesture of friendship for the United States. According to protocol in such matters the generalissimo would have awaited Marshall at his official residence inside the walled city.

"Tell him I am deeply honored," Marshall said to Chiang's personal chief-of-staff, Gen. Shang Chen, who was acting as interpreter.

Chiang replied simply:

"I welcome you to Nanking.

Facts--Not Personalities--Are at Issue

Nothing has more prejudiced public opinion against the Fulton county commission than the ill-advised attack of two commissioners—Ellis Barrett and Clarence Duncan—upon the personal lives of members of the grand jury-appointed citizens' committee which recently investigated it.

Even those of us who have wondered if irregularities unearthed by the committee were not more the result of a system than the fault of the commission, thoroughly resent the vicious attack which Messrs. Barrett and Duncan have made upon the citizens who—at the grand jury's request—comprised the committee.

Moreover, by stooping to virtual scandalmongering instead of dealing with the allegations made by the committee, the commission has invited a growing public suspicion that it has no defense in the field of fact.

In dragging in irrelevant and immaterial details of the personal and even domestic lives of the members of the investigating committee, Messrs. Barrett and Duncan leave the distinct impression of lashing out in desperation at personalities rather than issuing categorical statements pertinent to the issues involved.

Especially do we regret the nature of the notoriety to which the commissioners have seen fit to subject the committee in view of the fact that it will inevitably react to the detriment of good government. Certainly any citizen will be reluctant to serve on future grand jury committees knowing that, though he act in all good faith, he is liable to be attacked most viciously by public officials whom it has been his duty to criticize.

George Smith Patton--Fabulous Soldier

Without doubt he went hurriedly up to the gates of Valhalla and hammered on the bronze of the doors, pretty damned glad to get away from it all. The wars have softened up to where some pipsqueak congressman or some milk-and-water cleric is always wanting to berate a man for swearing; with too many regulations about p's and q's when—as everyone knows—the way to fight a war is to train your men, give them the weapons and tell them to pull up their socks and go out there and hit the other guy on his blank-blank jaw. George Patton wouldn't go to heaven if they asked him. Valhalla is his eternal camping ground.

George Smith Patton, whose grandfather fought and died in the Shenandoah Valley campaign of the War Between the States, passed on yesterday in an American hospital at Heidelberg, Germany. Hurt a dozen days ago in an automobile wreck, he had said to the medics who picked him up, "What a hell of a way to die!"

He and his men had stormed the beaches at Normandy. They had driven their tanks so fast and so furiously they had cracked the German plans. They reached the outskirts of Metz and the Germans were pulling out fast, all but demoralized. There they ran out of gasoline. The sweating truckers and the pipe line being laid were not as fast as Patton's tanks. The Germans came back and the war, which might have ended in three months, dragged on more than twice as long. Patton's famous "Third" was fighting then in Czechoslovakia.

It was a fabulous army, taking on some of the hard-hitting, billy-be-damned character of its leader. "Hit 'em hard," was his policy. He took the losses, believing that was the way to win and, in the end, the way to save more lives. It is an argument never to be settled.

He was a great soldier in this war—and in the first World War.

None will dispute that.

He was a soldier. Nothing more. The pity was they tried to have him administer an occupation government. He didn't do a good job. He used Nazis because they were efficient and he liked efficiency. It puzzled him a man's politics or ideology had anything to do with life. He was a soldier.

The nation will honor him. In time it will forget his eccentricities. He will slip naturally into folklore and legend. Indeed, he was already something of a legend when death came for him.

Good luck, George. The boys in Valhalla have been waiting for you. Indeed, it seems already one may hear the steins banging on the vast tables and the roar of laughter going up as you tell them of your speech before you and your men hit the beaches on D-Day.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

Hats Off!

Editor Constitution: Veterans of this war join hands with me in extending our heartfelt thanks to George Bishop (regrettably of Atlanta) and his article condemning us and our brides (if any) as the cause of the present housing shortage.

Hats off! To such perfidious accusations, to such fallacious reasoning and to such blind bigotry. We have concluded a successful war against three amateur despots who think just as our afore-mentioned friend. People so blindly injurious to others are constantly provoking ill-will, wars or racial prejudices, either nationally or internationally. Perhaps George advocates just such a policy, hoping for personal profit. From reading his article it's plainly evident that he is jealous of the veteran and the enormous sum ($50 a month) the veteran was paid to defend such idiotical embittered self-centered hypocrites as George Bishop. He says this war was wasteful. It was, but only in the sense that approximately 500,000 Americans will not enjoy this peaceful Christmas, for they are our HEROES—the dead and the living dead. They sacrificed for all Americans. When you cast your abuse on veterans for needing housing did you stop to think, some of these veterans are our heroic cripples. They need shelter also. Surely you do not spit your vituperative remarks at these unfortunates, too. In summation I can only say people who think, or even tend to consider such thoughts, should be ostracized from the world. It is hard to conceive anyone being so inexplicably ignorant, so infamously irksome or so insanely jealous of those who contributed SO MUCH.

Roof Over Head

Editor Constitution: Perhaps Mr. Bishop doesn't realize how much the serviceman sacrificed when he gave up his home to go to war so that many others as well as Mr. Bishop could live in a nice warm place. If Mr. Bishop just had one winter to spend out as some of the boys did I personally think he would not take the attitude he does—let the serviceman stay out. The boys gave their all that people like Mr. Bishop might have a roof over their heads. I, for one, say do the utmost to give these boys housing.

Bishop to Bishop

Editor Constitution: As you may readily imagine it was with a great deal of indignation I read the article "Pampered Vets" by George Bishop. While the men of this country have been out fighting, he sits home and moans about the terrific expense to the poor civilians. He forgets that we are civilians only in uniform. He has probably made more money during the war than he has all the rest of his life.

During the last war he could buy more with his $18 than we can today with $50. And as to the civilians who bear the terrific expense—they have made enough off the soldiers to realize a nice profit.

Now that the war is over and his hide is safe he can knock the soldiers who have given up five years of their life, saying they are pampered. I wish he could tell that to my friends whom I went to school with—most are dead or wounded, and unfortunately money from civilians like him won't buy them legs or arms.

The irony of it is that this poor civilian has the same name as I.

GEORGE W. BISHOP.
Robins Field, Ga.

Answer

Editor Constitution: Hear my answer in regards to Mr. George Bishop's letter in Pulse of the Public.

Mr. Bishop: After reading your article, I have been doing some heavy thinking.

Have you ever slept in mud for weeks at a time? Have you seen your neighbors go up in a puff of smoke? Or help them back to a battalion aid station after they have lost their arms, legs or their eyes? Have you gone for days in hell of battle without food or a nice bed to sleep in at night? Have you heard a cry of pain at night, and listened for the last words to come from some unknown lips, yet you know that he is a buddy of yours and that you cannot help him? Mr. Bishop, I ask you, have you done any of these things?

As for a wasteful war, I agree. But as for paying for it, I imagine that my grandchildren will pay for this war.

I wish to thank you for my buddies. (Yes, even those that will never know what kind of civilians we fought for).

In Memoriam

Editor Constitution: In memoriam—to he normal reasoning powers of poor Mr. Bishop which undoubtedly cracked under the unbearable strain of the burden which was placed upon him during his wartime role of civilian! Mr. Bishop, have you read your recent article referring to the "pampered" soldiers? I could hardly resist writing a reply expressing my sincerest sympathy for your present condition. If you will kindly put your address in the paper, my friends and I will gladly send you our meager wartime savings so that you may have proper care in a psychiatric hospital. According to your logic, you should have joined the Army—maybe you would have been better off. Incidentally, my buddies and I expect to be paying a few more taxes ourselves: or did you think the war debt was paid? As to the increase in soldier pay during World War II: I don't believe many people would have had the audacity to mention such a meager reward, as living costs have increased, too, you know. In summation, Mr. Bishop, I believe you are merely harboring a grudge left over from the last war. Maybe you weren't petted then as you think we are now—or were you even in the last war? I trust that public sentiment does not run true to your form of moronic logic, else our time away from home and overseas will certainly have been wasted!

It Seemed Like a Christmas Story

To me it seemed like a Christmas story.

We sat there in the warm living room of his brother's house. After long nights of vigil at the hospital bedside of his suffering wife, death had come with its dreadful finality.

None knows what it is. The poets, the makers of proverbs, the prophets, the apostles have done their best. And they have not done badly—"The silver cord is loosed"—"The bowl is broken at the fountain"—"The greatest king must at last be put to bed with a shovel."

"From too much love of living,
From hope and fear set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving
Whatever gods may be,
That no life lives forever;
That dead men rise up never;
That even the weariest river
Winds somewhere safe to sea."

"Judge none blessed before his death"—"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" . . .

One might collect a great library of proverbs, poems, essays and sayings about death. But when it comes, there is no escaping the great and awful finality of it. Happy are they who can rationalize away some of the bitterness and the finality and great silence of it.

Thoughts As I said, we sat there in the warm room talking. He had had his first sleep in a long time. But it was obvious that in his retirement he had not been sleeping all the time. He had been thinking.

In the beginning I said it seemed like a Christmas story to me. There were just three of us talking.

"You know," he began, "already it does not seem to me that she is gone. I can feel her presence about me, even now as we talk.

"She taught me a lot in 15 years. She taught me how to live. At the end of every day she would say, 'Hasn't this been a fine day? Hasn't it been good to live today? Haven't we had a fine time? We have got everything anyone could have and enjoy.' . . . She talked like that. This was not my nature. But she gave me, through the years, something of it until I, too, began to feel that the days were good days and that life was worth living and that what we had of the earth and our work was good.

"She was kind in a natural sort of way and she had a simplicity that was real. People could read her and she them. I have seen small birds, that had fallen from their nest and been cared for by her, call to her when she came into the room where they were. The Negroes on the place could read her and she them and they got along in a manner few persons could understand. Sick and hurt cats and dogs and persons came naturally to her. I honestly think she and the dogs talked a language of their own.

"The trees and flowers were wonderful to her. She knew, it seemed to me, when each leaf budded and when it turned in the fall. We are going to bury her on the farm on a hill by the lane she liked best.

"There was no vanity in her, or envy or malice. And she knew how to take her measure of life and make it sing for herself and others . . ."

All this was in his mind and his words.

Story And that is why it seemed to me like a Christmas story. Death and life always are about us. The cycle goes on inexorably. The awful mystery of death and the wondrous mystery of birth keep repeating themselves. Death comes to babies and children and to the middle-aged and old. It comes with pain and illness and long suffering, making one lack even the dignity of a good death; or it comes swiftly in bed or in the streets. Some go running to seek it; others go stumbling, driven by some terrifying, impelling inner force none can explain. On the day we celebrate the birth of Christ, death will knock at many doors saying, "Let me in." To some he will be a grisly terror, to others a welcome friend.

Happy are they who can talk as did this man into whose life death had come even as the Christmas bells began to ring out their story of birth and immortality.

Truman Prejudiced In Favor of Army?

(Editor's note: Ralph Jones continues ill. Today's column is by Washington Correspondent Jay G. Hayden.)

WASHINGTON.—President Truman's long message advocating unification of the armed services dealt with everything except the vital reason for the Navy's bitter resistance to this step—which is a deep-seated conviction that Mr. Truman, an ex-Army officer, is prepossessed in favor of that branch.

Had Franklin D. Roosevelt lived to make the same recommendation, the existing situation of Army support and Navy opposition probably would have been reversed.

Mr. Roosevelt's first federal job was as assistant secretary of the Navy and from that time on he never missed an opportunity to extoll the sea service and urge its expansion.

If Mr. Roosevelt were directing unification, therefore, the Navy would have no fear for either its prestige or appropriations.

Toward Mr. Truman the Navy's attitude is very different. It is firmly convinced that unification, if carried out by the present administration, will be chiefly an effort to build up the Army and Air Force at expense of the Navy.

Aside from Mr. Truman's Army background, both as a long-time member of the Missouri National Guard and an artillery officer in World War I, there has been an unmistakable rise in War Department influence at the White House since the change of presidents last spring.

Gen. Marshall, just now engaged on a mission to China, repeatedly has been called in by the President, and there is a premonition in Naval circles that Gen. Eisenhower, who has taken over as Army chief of staff, will bulk even larger in the same capacity.

It is an odds-on bet, say the Navy spokesmen, that if congress creates an over-all chief of staff to administer a combined Army, Navy and Air Corps, as requested by the President, the first occupant of that office will be Gen. Eisenhower.

Navy opinion is not at all appeased by the President's suggestion that the chief of staff should be "rotated among the several services" because, it contends, Eisenhower, with a first crack at the job and bolstered by his great personal prestige, could get things fixed up to the Army's satisfaction before the Navy ever has an inning.

King Report Admiral King, who, in comparison with Marshall and Eisenhower has been anything but a Truman favorite, may have had the above thoughts in mind when, in his final report, he said:

"There is no 'paramount capacity' among the joint chiefs of staffs to warrant elevating one of their members to a position of military commander of all the armed forces—nor, in my opinion, is there any known system of experience which can be counted upon to produce the man qualified for such a position. This war has produced no such man. Unity of command at the highest military level was never attempted, nor seriously considered."

An almost immediate aftermath of the President's unification message is expected to be the resignations of James V. Forrestal and H. Struve Hensel, respectively secretary and assistant secretary of the Navy. And since uniformed officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, in deference to the President's views, have been forbidden to oppose unification from now on, except as they are formally summoned to testify before congress, Forrestal and Hensel, returned to civil life, may head up the Navy's fight.

"National bridge tournament ends in minor riot. Chief casualty of the fracas: one contestant has buttons snatched from coat."—News item.

When long ago old one-eyed Joe sat in a game of poker
It wasn't mild, with deuces wild and a discarded joker;
He played his hoard across the board and with a stern demeanor,
He'd bet his dough and dust although they took him to the cleaner.
Oh, many a man of that old clan is sleeping on the prairie,
For they were men with tempers then and apt to act contrary,
A Bowie knife would end a life and often-times they shot 'em
Because they played a club or spade and dealt it from the bottom.
But now we find the player's mind has superseded matter,
The modern game is somewhat tame and mostly idle chatter
Until some chump throws out a trump upon his partner's aces,
And then they tear each other's hair or spank each other's faces.
In various ways each one displays his anger mild, or milder—
The roaring days have gone their ways, when men were mean and wilder,
But now they shun the blazing gun and gory scenes, unsightly,
And slap each other on the wrist and do it most politely.

Dead End

ROBERT QUILLEN

Letter to The Redhead

My dear Louise:

It is true that the Romans, long before the time of Christ, held a celebration at the end of the year in honor of their god Saturn. It began on Dec. 17 and continued for some days. No work was done; people exchanged gifts; slaves were treated with unusual kindness.

It is also true that the early Christians did not celebrate Christ's Mass. There was no such celebration for 200 years after His death, and another century or two passed before the celebration became general.

There is no early record to tell us why Dec. 25 is the day of celebration. The art of printing was unknown, and few of the common people could read and write. But facts worth remembering were memorized and taught to succeeding generations, and we can only assume that the date of Christ's birth was thus treasured in the minds of His followers.

In any case, and regardless of all controversy, this much we know.

Christmas now is celebrated as the birthday of Christ. There is no other reason whatever to celebrate it or remember it. To celebrate or notice it at all, and leave out Christ, is like celebrating the Fourth of July and forgetting that it has any connection with our independence and freedom.

What I am trying to tell you is that Christmas must be a religious festival or it isn't anything.

Actions speak louder than words, yet you can scarcely imagine anybody saying: "Our Lord and Savior was born on this day. Let's get drunk and celebrate."

There are more appropriate ways to honor Him.

It may be only a matter of taste, but I don't like Christmas cards that seek to celebrate poinsettias or Scottie dogs and make incidental mention of a "holiday."

Don't misunderstand me. I don't mean to suggest that Christmas should be only an old-fashioned Sunday. We have outgrown the Puritan idea that piety is a form of misery.

Christmas is a day for happiness; a day to make children happy; a day to feast; a day to help the unfortunate; a day to be generous and unselfish and kind; but above all, a day to honor Him who tried to teach us to love one another.

Love, DAD.

Looks Forward To the Time To Retire

Tire rationing will be lifted Jan. 1.

Now I know what they mean by "Happy New Year."

The tread on my tires is as thin as Farley's hair. I've seen more rubber on the end of a pencil.

I don't know, I guess I just waited too long to start toting them over the rough spots.

During the summer months they blew out more frequently than a boarding house fuse.

On a hot day it sounded like "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" with sound effects.

The end of tire rationing will make my wife happy, too. Now she can have ours to put around the flower beds again.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Wallace To Head Evolving Third Party?

WASHINGTON.—The apparent break between President Truman and the CIO, powerful labor organization, has given rise to further reports that Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace is planning to resign from the cabinet early in the new year to assume leadership of the liberal forces of the country.

Pressure to resign is being brought on the former vice president, it is said, in order that he may become the CIO candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1948.

Philip Murray, head of the CIO, and other important labor leaders criticized President Truman sharply because of the message he sent to congress recently urging new legislation to deal with the strike situation.

If the break thus threatened is not healed, it may be accepted as a foregone conclusion that organized labor, or at least important segments of it, will put forward a candidate of its own for the Democratic nomination at the next national convention.

Wallace Mr. Wallace lends himself more to a project of that kind than most anyone else now in the public eye. He was the favorite of the CIO for second place on the ticket with President Roosevelt at the 1944 convention, losing out to President Truman by something less than 100 votes.

Many of his friends still think he was cheated out of the nomination because of treachery on the part of Truman managers. Some of the latter had persuaded Mr. Roosevelt that Wallace did not have a chance at renomination, hence the second White House letter indorsing Mr. Truman for the post.

Secretary Wallace himself is known to share this feeling, since the revelation of the treachery was made to him personally by the late President following the events of the Chicago convention.

All of this may have a pointed bearing on any move he makes in the future looking to his becoming a presidential candidate in 1948. In any event, it is an interesting thing to remember in speculating on his future political plans.

Some of the closest sources to Secretary Wallace in Washington admit that he is unhappy with his present position and may be contemplating resigning within the coming year. But they put it on a different basis from the current reports linking him with CIO political plans.

The secretary, it is pointed out, has transmitted to congress recommendations for new legislation and additional appropriations with which to carry out an expansion program he has in mind for the Department of Commerce. Thus far congress has done nothing about it.

Mr. Wallace cannot consider this a personal affront, however, because other recommendations made by President Truman have fared no better.

To Quit? Nevertheless, he is represented by those in position to know to be of a frame of mind to quit his cabinet post if congress does not approve the program he has outlined. He is said to be prepared to remain on the job long enough after the new session begins to give congress an opportunity to act. If action is not forthcoming, then it would not be surprising to his friends to see him get out.

To this extent, some credence is given the current crop of rumors about him yielding to CIO pressure to resign as a means of assuming leadership of liberal forces of the country.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Wallace would succeed to such leadership once he divorced himself from the cabinet. The groundwork for that was laid at the past Chicago convention, when the CIO threw the full force of its Political Action Committee behind him as a candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

At the present writing the best cue to the former vice president's political plans seems to lie in congress. If congress approves his expansion program, he may be expected to continue on in the Truman cabinet indefinitely. Otherwise, he will probably get out.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

WE SHOULD DEVELOP A TOURIST AUTHORITY

(Gainesville News)

We are glad to see aroused interest in Georgia's tourist development. Northeast Georgia is the greatest in tourist potentialties of any part of this state, and our people are gradually becoming interested in the development of our possibilities. While we have many fine roads in our mountain section, others are needed to make accessible many points of paramount interest.

Perhaps the greatest need of all is ample hotel and tourist court facilities. We repeat what we have said many times before that tourists are perfectly willing to pay for nice accommodations. How to get these accommodations is the hard problem to solve. According to our viewpoint, Georgia needs to organize a Tourist Authority, which could provide the means for building hotels, tourist courts and recreational resorts under a well-thought-out plan. Judging by the experience of the hotels owned by the State Park Commission, these bring in much revenue each season, therefore similar establishments will soon pay for themselves.

Georgia must cash in on her possibilities.

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

Georgia Thin at Fullback

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 21.—Georgia is down to one fullback and a converted quarterback who is going to give the position a try in the New Year's Day Oil Bowl game at Houston, Texas.

Just after the season ended Floyd Reid left the squad and returned home. Today Larry Bouley, who had joined the squad at season's end, visited Coach Wally Butts and announced his legs had gone bad again.

"Best thing for you to do is go home to Massachusetts for Christmas and forget about football," the little round man told the former Boston College athlete. So Bouley has gone east.

"We could start Joe Chesna, the only fullback we have left. But chances are Jimmy Gordon, who has been playing quarterback, will be in the opening lineup against Tulsa."

Gordon, an Atlanta boy, had 50 missions as a tail gunner in the European theater and he is capable of cracking down from the fullback position.

"I still say we aren't big enough for Tulsa," Coach Butts added. "Henry Frnka used to have a lot of hard-playing 4-F's. Now he's got a great many ex-servicemen, and I'll tell you, frankly, the Golden Hurricane blows hard. Tulsa only lost two games—one to Oklahoma A. & M. and the other to Indiana. And Frnka's boys beat A. & M. in everything but the score.

"The game has me plenty worried," Butts added.

Which indicates that the little round man already is in game form.

Ex-Servicemen

The Bulldogs are in a position to use 13 ex-servicemen against Tulsa. Capt. J. P. Miller fought from St. Lo down to Palais Gap in France. He suffered a cerebral concussion due to shell fragments. Miller is an excellent guard and a fine leader.

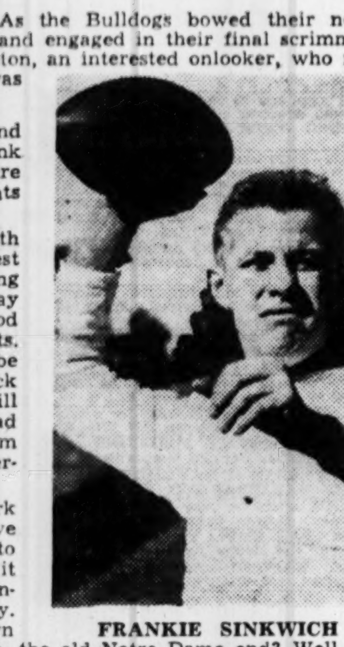

We mentioned Gordon and his 50 missions. And then there are such boys as Joe Tereshinski, who served overseas with the Army; Charlie Trippi, Army; Carl Sanders, Army; Al Jefferey, Marines; Joe Chesna, Army; Carlson Phillips, Army; Ben Fordham, Marines; Frank Plant, Marines; Ryals Lee, Army; Cotton Culpepper, Army, and John Donaldson, Navy. Beefy Eeaves, who started the season as Bulldog captain and suffered a broken back in the first game, served with the Army. Eaves has been team manager for most of the season. He can't play any more football this year.

With the exception of 17-year-old Johnny Rauch, quarterback, Georgia may start an ex-serviceman backfield, including Trippi, Donaldson and Gordon. Rabbit Smith might start in place of Donaldson.

The coaches are greatly pleased with the improvement of Donaldson in the running department. Backfield Coach Charley Treadway pointed out that Donaldson is running lower and getting more drive.

Sinkwich Gets Offers

As the Bulldogs bowed their necks and engaged in their final scrimmage before shoving off from Houston, an interested onlooker, who now weighs in at 188, ringside, was Flatfoot Frankie Sinkwich.

FRANKIE SINKWICH

Frankie's wife, Adeline, and daughter, Adeline, whom Frank affectionately calls Porky, are visiting Mrs. Sinkwich's parents at Royston.

"There's nothing wrong with my knee now that a little rest won't cure. I have been baking it under a sun lamp every day and believe it will be as good as new when the season starts. Can't say who I'm going to be with next season. If I am back in the National League, it will be Detriot, of course. I have had several flattering offers from the new All-American Conference."

A phone call from New York was received by Frankie as we waited around for practice to begin. He didn't say whether it concerned football or not. "Funny thing about my knee injury. A boy from my home town hurt me. Remember Bob Dove, the old Notre Dame end? Well, he was playing with the El Toro Marines and blocked me from the side. Everybody thought it had ruined me. I wasn't sure myself until I removed the cast,' Sinkwich pointed out.

Frankie definitely is going to play pro football next year, but he conceivably may shift from the National to the All-American Conference. It all depends on what team makes the best offer. For, after all, Flatfoot Frankie's a family man now. And he has been the National League's most valuable player.

The pros entertain a love for the game and they play for keeps. But, from the financial side, it's a cold business proposition. And that's as it should be. The owners are not in football because of their interest in the game for game's sake.

"Tulsa's Too Big"

This is Wally Butts' seventh year as head coach at the university. He has had three bowl teams—and none of his Georgia teams has lost a bowl game yet.

Butts vigorously beat his knuckles on his wood-top desk when the subject was brought up.

"There's always a first time," he said, cautiously.

Georgia bumped off Texas Christian, 40 to 26, in Miami's Orange bowl and took U. C. L. A. in camp, 9 to 0, in Pasadena's Rose Bowl.

"Tulsa's too big," Butts said today, reaffirming a statement which he may as well set to music and put on a record to be played daily between now and Jan. 1.

"I shudder every time I think about one of our little boys grabbing hold of that Camp Wilson," Butts said, shuddering in the cool wind on Sanford field.

WADE WILL RETURN AS DUKE COACH

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Wallace Wade, who as football coach at Alabama and Duke Universities led five teams into Rose Bowl football classics, will return to coaching duties next season at Duke.

On leave since early in 1942, while in naval service, Wade will reassume his duties as head coach of the Duke football team Jan. 1.

Eddie Cameron, his successor, during the period in which Navy duties drew Wade away from Duke, will continue as director of physical education and athletics and also as backfield coach of the Blue Devils football team.

BOYS CLUB CHRISTMAS PARTY—Though they held their annual Christmas party in the S & W cafeteria yesterday, the members of the Atlanta Boys Club did not have to serve themselves by any means. The serving was done by the boys' hosts, John S. Blick (left), vice president of the Atlanta Club; Stanley Simpson (center, background), president of the American Business Club; and Virgil Warren (right), president of the Atlanta Boys Club. Needless to say, a good time was had by all.

St. Mary's Youngest Bowl Club

By HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—(UP)—The youngest team ever to play in a Bowl game will be on hand at New Orleans' Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day when the St. Mary's College Gaels tangle with favored Oklahoma A. and M.

St. Mary's starting team will average 18 1-2 years per person. They are mature in body and, while not exactly heavyweights as football players go, they make up in speed what they lack in age and size. Their average weight will be 183 pounds.

The Gaels, "rags to riches" team of the era, have nothing to boast of in the way of experience. There are two sophomores and nine fresmen on the starting eleven. But they ask no quarter —and give none.

Their phenomenal 1945 record is attributed to a decision made 'way back at the end of the 1942 season. At that time many of the college clubs in the west were discontinuing the game.

TINY ENROLLMENT

But St. Mary's, with an enrollment that had dwindled to the 100 mark, decided to carry on. With Coach Jimmy Phelon at the helm, the Gaels won two, lost five in 1943—but developed a fellow by the name of Herman Wedemeyer. He was in the service in 1944 and the team lost all the five games on its schedule.

With the start of the 1945 season, Wedemeyer returned from his wartime duties and led the club to seven victories in eight games — and won unanimous praise as an All-American.

When Phelan looked around for his 1945 team he went out and rounded up a dozen youngsters for the forward wall who had had only high school experience.

To go in the backfield with Wedemeyer he had brilliant Dennis O'Connor, a hold-over quarterback from 1944 to call the signals. He reached out and got Charles (Spike) Cordeiro, a scat back from Honolulu, for the left halfback spot.

The line was inexperienced, but fast—and full of fighting spirit. End Ed Ryan, the biggest man on the squad a. 204 pounds, developed so fart that he was near unanimous choice for All-Pacific Coast. The others came along equally well.

GOOD START

They started off by dumping California, 20-13, in the opener—their first victory since early 1943. Then in succession came Stockton Army Commandos, '6-0; University of Nevada, 39-0; Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of Pacific, 61-0; McClellan Field Fliers, 58-0; University of Southern California (the Rose Bowl team), 26-0, and Fresno State, a tough small school, 32-6.

The lone defeat came in the final 40 seconds of play in the last game—13-7, to U. C. L. A.

It was a grand record for Phelan after those two heart-breaking years of continuous defeats.

The pay-off was the bid to the Sugar Bowl—where the Gaels are the underdogs in the wagering, but a good bet to win the support of the crowd before the end of the first quarter.

It was their wide-open, running and passing style of play which made them the darlings of the Pacific. They were so good, in fact, that they played to 390,-000 fans in their eight games.

Which is proof that they must have something on the ball.

Barnhill Accepts Job at Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 21.—(UP)—John Barnhill, of the University of Tennessee, has been named head coach for the University of Arkansas, board of trustee members announced tonight.

The Tennessee coach succeeds Glen Rose at a salary of $10,000 per year. His contract will become effective Jan. 1, 1946, and will last five years.

Barnhill took over as acting head coach and athletic director at Tennessee in May, 1941, when Brig Gen. Bob Neyland went into active service. His Tennessee teams have won 32 games, lost five and tied two games in four years. Tennessee did not have a football team in 1943. He also had two bowl teams, his Vols defeating Tulsa in the 1943 Sugar Bowl game, 14-7, and losing to Southern California, 25-0, in the Rose Bowl game Jan. 1, 1945. Brig. Gen. Neyland is expected back at Tennessee soon.

Barnhill, a Tennessee farm boy, is a native of Savannah, Tenn. He played two years of football and basketball on the Savannah Institute teams before enrolling at the West Tennessee State Teachers College at Memphis where he was on the football, basketball and track teams two years.

The slender built Barnhill, after being captain of the WTSTC team one year, entered the University of Tennessee in 1924, and the Volunteer coach, after trying him at several positions, finally had him as his regular guard. Barnhill was on the All-Southern Conference teams in 1926 and '27 at the guard position. He was captain of the Tennessee team in 1927.

After graduating from Tennessee, he became head football coach at the Bristol, Tenn., high school, where his teams won 25 games and lost three in three years. He joined the Tennessee coaching staff in the fall of 1931 as freshman football coach. He held that post until 1935 when he became varsity line coach. In that capacity, he turned out such All-America linesmen as Bob Suffridge, Ed McLinski and Marshall Shires. When Neyland obtained a military leave of absence in 1941, Barnhill took over as head football coach and athletic director at Tennessee. He now devotes his time to backfield coaching.

Barnhill is married and the father of one child, a five-year-old daughter.

Dixie Walker Led National In RBI Race

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(INS)—Dixie Walker, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, led the National eLague in runs batted in during 1945 with 124.

Official averages released today revealed this fact. It was the first time in his career that the veteran outfielder had batted in as many as 100 runs.

Tommy Holmes, of Boston, was second with 117. Holmes, for the first time in his career, also led in slugging with .577.

Eddie Stanky, of Brooklyn, drew 148 bases on balls. This broke the 34-year-old National League record of 147, set by Jimmy Sheckard, of the Cubs, in 1911.

Vince DiMaggio, of the Phillies, seems intent upon setting a record for striking out that will stand for all time. For the fourth successive season, he whiffed most often, 91 times.

However, Vince partially atoned for this by hitting a home run with the bases filled four times. This tied a major league record.

Babe Dahlgren, of the Pirates, grounded into the most double plays, 23.

Mel Ott, veteran manager of the New York Giants, set no less than nine lifetime National league records. These concerned such marks as most years playing with one club, most runs scored, most total bases, most extra bases on long hits, most extra-base hits, most home runs, most runs batted in, and most bases on balls.

The champion Chicago Cubs established two new major league records. They won 20 double-headers. Also, they now have won 16 pennants.

The Cubs also tied a major league record in winning all but one of their 22 games with Cincinnati. It would appear that their ability to win both ends of a twin bill, and their jinx over the Reds, gave the Bruins the pennant. The Cubs also had the best Club record both at home and abroad.

Brooklyn batted in the most runs, 720. Cincinnati struck out the most times, 532. The New York Giants led in club slugging percentage with .379.

The St. Louis Cardinals won the most shutouts, 18, and lost the fewest, five.

Koverley Steals Wrestling Show

George (KO) Koverley, 232-pound bruiser from California, stole the show from the main event principals last night on the weekly wrestling card at the City Auditorium.

Koverley, appearing in the semi-final scrap, defeated Abe Yourist in 12 minutes with a series of headlocks and a right to the jaw. And it was the latter that proved most convincing in the slambang battle.

In the main event, Tarzan White defeated Vic Emanuel in 22 minutes with a series of flying tackles. It looked like White was returning to his All-American form of Alabama grid days as he slammed Emanuel from one side of the ring to the other.

Al Massey and Ben Bennicasa battled to a 20-minute draw with neither battler having any appreciable advantage. Wally Greb beat Jack Bloomfield, a newcomer, in 16 minutes with a series of body slams.

In an all-local opener, Dick Lever defeated Bruce White, the erstwhile policeman, in 12 minutes wtih a body block. However, Lever had the unofficial aid of his second, Tiger Kirkland, who grabbed White and held him at the opportune moment for the fall.

BOBBY DAVIS, GEORGE MATHEWS ELECTED 1946 TECH GRID CAPTAINS

At a secretly held banquet Thursday night at the Ansley hotel for the Georgia Tech football team and the coaching staff, Bob Davis, all southeastern tackle and punter, was named by his teammates to captain the 1946 Jackets. George Matthews, speedy halfback, was elected to serve as co-captain to Davis.

Both of the new Jacket captains are products of Columbus, Ga. Davis played for Jordan High and Matthews was a member of the rival Columbus High eleven. Both are members of the Tech basketball squad.

The meeting was informal, with none of the usual speeches that attend a banquet. Coach Bill Alexander, Pres. Colonel Blake Van Leer and Capt. Robert Strike, of the naval detachment, were the honor guests.

STOCK SALES

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Selected rails, industrials and utilities turned to the recovery side of today's stock market, although many leaders continued to seek lower levels.

Pressure slackened appreciably after the opening and initial losses running to 2 or more points were reduced or converted into gains of as much in the final hour. Closing trends were no worse than moderately irregular. Intermittent activity of low-quoted issues aided volume although the proceedings, on the whole, were slow throughout. Transfers of 940,000 shares compared with 800,000 Thursday and were the smallest for a full stretch since Sept. 24.

Numerous customers deserted boardrooms for an early start on the lengthy holiday. Principal securities markets will recess from Saturday to Wednesday. Some buying was based on the belief the recent technical correction might bring a resumption of the rise after Christmas. Tax adjustment persisted as a handicap and some selling was based on skepticism regarding labor controversies and the wide latitude given fact-finding boards by the administration. Earnings, dividends and split-up reports were helpful.

The bond market drifted irregularly lower today under light offerings in the rails that found bids scarce. Declines ranged from fractions to more than a point. There were scattered spots of resistance in late dealings.

Among curb stumblers were Aluminum Ltd., Bell Telephone of Canada, Cities Service and Singer Mfg. Turnover here was 440,000 shares, the same as yesterday.

Federal Home Building Program, With Vets' Priority, Starts Jan. 15

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The government's program to spur home construction will go into effect Jan. 15, John D. Small announced Friday.

The chief of the Civilian Production Administration ordered that dwellings costing $10,000 or less be offered first to veterans and told a news conference that the top rent on the dwellings will be $80 a month.

Small estimated that at least 400,000 homes will be built under the program in 1946.

"We expect," he added, "that a substantial number of these will sell at considerably less than $10,000."

This means, Small said, that a great many of the new dwellings will rent for under $80 a month.

The CPA chief outlined a new regulation restoring 10 kinds of critically scarce building materials and announced that the Federal Housing Administration will handle applications for these through its 52 field offices.

Beginning Jan. 15, home builders who qualify will be assigned a so-called "HH" rating for these materials.

Housing already under way may be brought within the program, Small said, if it meets the $10,000 price limit, is offered first to veterans, and meets other standards outlined in the regulation.

All applicants for priorities assistance in obtaining materials must agree to make the housing available to veterans during the period of construction and for 30 days thereafter.

At the conclusion of that period it may be sold or rented to a nonveteran a: the same sale price or rental applicable to vetrials to a priority system and anerans.

Building materials covered by the new regulation are:

Common and face brick, clay sewer pipe, structural tile, gypsum board, gypsum lath, cast iron soil pipe and fittings, cast iron radiation equipment, bath tubs, lumber and millwork.

Here are principal provisions of the new regulation drawn up at the direction of President Truman in a move to ease the acute housing shortage:

1. Applicants for the so-called "HH" ratings must submit specifications on homes to be built under the program, along with the price or rental at which the dwelling will be made available to veterans of World War Two, including the proposed price or rent is "reasonably related to the cost of the proposed accommodations."

2. Builders must show they will be ready to start construction within 60 days. They also must demonstrate that they have effective control of the land, that financing is assured, and that arrangements have been made for local building permits, utility services and the like.

If construction has not been started within 60 days, the "HH" rating becomes void and a new application must be filed.

3. In the case of a resale, veterans or other purchasers are pledged to the same 30-day waiting period during which the dwelling must be offered exclusively to other veterans.

The sale must be made at or below the maximum sales price originally paid.

4. The regulation also provides for conversion of existing construction where it can be shown that this will result in increased housing facilities.

5. Building materials also may be channelled to dormitories or group housing for educational institutions for the benefit of veterans.

Authority for the new program stems from the second war powers act, which has just been renewed for six months—through June 30, 1946.

Small said "obviously, if the act is not renewed again next June, this housing program will cease."

He said this was one of the reasons the administration had urged extension of the second war powers act through 1946.

If applications for a great many more than 400,000 new dwellings are received next year, Small said, "we may be forced to set up geographic quotas," limiting the number of homes which may be built in particular areas.

He said, too, that if a preponderance of applications for homes to sell at $10,000 are received, CPA will have to establish quotas "to see that a share of new dwellings are in the lower price ranges."

"Also," he added, "if we have too many homes built for sale rather than rental, we will have to do something about that."

Urges Full Scale Of Home Building

The Atlanta League of Savings and Building and Loan Associations, pointing out that there are adequate funds available locally in the eight member associations to finance any home building program that might be undertaken, resolved at a meeting yesterday to remove obstacles to the inauguration of a full scale home construction program in the city.

The resolution, offered by President William M. Scurry, called for governmental agencies with jurisdiction over price and rent levels to adjust these levels as far as necessary to expedite the program; governmental agencies in charge of building materials to be requested to release them for use in home building; the co-operation of labor to be sought in bringing hundreds of thousands of workers into home construction work; and the Savings, Building & Loan Associations in Atlanta to use the $36,000,000 available to finance every sound home construction project.

Goodwyn To Head Fulton Medics For Coming Year

Dr. T. C. Goodwyn, orthopedic surgeon, has been elected head of the Fulton County Medical Society for the ensuing year.

Dr. R. Hugh Wood was named president-elect; Dr. Calyin B. Stewart, vice president, and Dr. McClaren Johnson was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

A native of Coweta county, Dr. Goodwyn was graduated from the Newnan High school and from Emory University in medicine and surgery with the class of 1913.

Entering the Army Medical Reserve Corps in 1917, he was called into active service the following year, later serving in France with the American Expeditionary Force as a bone and joint surgeon.

At the close of the war, Goodwyn returned to the States and became orthopedic consultant to the Atlanta office of the Federal Board of Vocational Education, rating disabilities in Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina and Tennessee.

Widely known in medical circles as one of the organizers of the crippled children's aid program in this state, Dr. Goodwyn is a member of the Georgia Medical Association, the Southeastern Surgical Congress, the American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons, a member of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgeons and a member of the American College of Surgeons.

RFC Agencies To Sell Surplus Consumer Goods

Plans to make surplus consumer goods — merchandise customarily bought at retail stores—available for sale at each of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's southern agencies, as well as capital and producer goods, have been announced following a meeting of RFC officials representing seven states held in Atlanta.

Consumer goods sections will be established in RFC agencies at New Orleans, La., Jacksonville, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., Nashville, Tenn., and Charlotte, N. C., to supplement Atlanta's regional office, it was decided here.

Hal L. Kennon, assistant manager of the Atlanta RFC agency in charge of surplus property, presided over the meeting.
